LA PORTE, Texas – Police were on the lookout Friday for a suspect who assaulted a woman while posing as a security service technician.

Investigators said it happened around 7 p.m. in the 5500 block of Sugar Creek Drive.

The victim said the man arrived at her front door and identified himself as an employee of a home security service, trying to sell an alarm system.

The victim let the man inside, and following a brief conversation, asked him to leave. But she said he started touching her inappropriately, instead of heading out the door. When she asked him to leave a second time, he complied.

The suspect's identity was not known.
